

Abstract of the Disclosure

When a session management apparatus receives a process request containing the identifier of a session using a plurality of media such as e-mail, WEB, voice, etc., it converts the identifier into uniformly available data to perform session management such as a start of a session, session identity management, a disconnection of the session, etc.

09753698-010301